

BEST PRACTICE 2

STUDENTS INTERACTION MEETING (SIM)

1. Title of the Best Practice : Students Interaction Meeting

2. Objectives of the Practice

Students Interaction Meeting is held every month with the Principal of the college to have an interaction with the students to discuss about their grievances and also the rectifications made based on the previous meeting.

3. The Context

Students are a vital channel of communication between the college and students, communicating and giving feedback about the college and student matters.

The main objective of this meeting is,

- To encourage student volunteer to initiate new ideas among the students.
- To bring out moral values among student community through their discussion.
- To appreciate and to encourage achievers of both academic and sports.
- To promote the welfare of the students by discussing directly with them.

4. The Practice

The practice of personal interaction with the students helps us in strengthening the bond between the student and the Management. It means perceiving and listening to these grievances of the students and an attempt to give them satisfactory solutions. The impact of this practice of developing personal contact with the students certainly has its positive impact on the aim of achieving quality education. The interaction of the teachers and the college administration with the students in class rooms, on campus and in various functions has developed a strong bond of oneness among us.

5. Problems Encountered and Resources Required:

Complaints received from students during representative meeting were considered and remedial actions were taken immediately for the welfare of the students. Periodical representative meeting is a productive pathway for the students for sharing their views regarding academic outcomes. The committee members streamlined the views of the students and positive actions were taken for the upliftment of the student's community.

6. Evidence and Success:

Besides being the student voice and being involved in the decision making of the organisation, there are several advantages of being a student representative. The student will experience personal professional development as part of this process. From communication skills to understanding processes, they will develop skills that will assist them in the short and long term. The student will have opportunities to increase their professional network with contacts who are influencers and decision makers across the mental health sector. The input from the student will help initiate improvements and solutions to create a more vibrant and valuable experience for all future students.
